In Europe SME's essential component of business

- generates most of GDP. in each country, usually between 55% - 95%;
- provide jobs for the majority of employment;
- generates a large proportion of the applicable technical innovations in the economy;
- have the highest dynamism in the market economy: the evolution of their number, the volume of turnover and size of employment

SMEs in Romania

- Romania has the second lowest density of businesses in the EU27. In 2011, the population of companies stood at 452,010, with an overall density per 1,000 population of 20.4. SMEs contribute 53% of GVA, five percentage points below the EU average.
- Economic operators encounter difficulties in growing, with low turnover and overwhelming dominance of microenterprises (90%), hampered by several obstacles: shortage of medium and highly skilled labour force, access to finance, excessive bureaucratisation with weak governance regarding the business environment, market with fragmented and inconsistent institutional set up and weak entrepreneurship.
